TWICE PROVEN

If you suffer backache, sleepless nights, tired, dull days and distressing urinary disorders, don't experiment. Read this twice-told testimony. It's Norway evidence—doubly proven.

E. C. Libby, Sanborn St., Norway, says: "I had a great deal of backache which annoyed me to do anything. My head ached and I noticed specks floating before my eyes and my sight blurred. I used different remedies but it was left to Doan's Pills to give me lasting results. I got Doan's at Stone's Drug Store and since using them I have had no return of kidney complaint." (Statement given June 6, 1916.)

On September 3, 1920, Mr. Libby said: "I haven't had occasion to use Doan's Pills or any other kidney medicine since being cured by Doan's. My faith in this remedy is just as strong as ever."

THE VILLAGE BLACKSMITH

(1924 Model)

Under an ad for gasoline. The village smithy stands; He's agent for the Jinx machine And several other brands. He hasn't shed a horse for years, For fear he'd soil his hands.

He wears a gold watch on his wrist, A pearl pin in his button hole, His links are made of amethyst, The finest he could buy.

There's not a thing the smithy wears That doesn't please the eye. Week in, week out, from morn till night, He sees the autos come With engines that are not working right And tires on the bum.

With gas, repairs, and grease and oil He makes a tidy sum. He has a staff of skillful men That number twenty-four. Who toil from six a. m. till ten, And sometimes even more.

The smithy never does a stroke— He thinks that work's a bore. The children coming home from school Look in at the open door, And laugh to see some city fool Set up an awful roar.

What called to pay some whopping bill The smith has soaked him for. He goes on Sunday to the kirk, Or to the movies, and never cares, Because his men are hard at work With hammers and repairs.

As if the weather were not warm The smith says grateful prayers. Oiling—refilling—repairing, Onward through life he goes, And never once despairing.

So long as his income grows, Each night the thought of some one done Augments his sweet repose. —Harper's.

IN OLD ALBANY

By L. L. Shedd
Was there ever land so fair Where the roses grew so rare, Or so fragrant as the air, Is in Albany.

Nowhere else the sun so bright, Or the snow so clear and white, Sheds the moon such mellow light As in Albany.

Nowhere hearts that beat so true, Or the skies so fair and blue, Never saw so fine a view As in Albany.

There's nowhere a bird with song Half as sweet, or clear, and long, Where the children grow so strong As in Albany.

Where the hills are the highest And meadows are the driest, The woods are the mightiest As in Albany.

The women are the neatest, The men are the cheeriest, With Maids the sweetest As in Albany.

Where the skies are the clearest, The people are the dearest, And Heaven is the nearest As in Albany.

And we hope when God's own hand Made for us "The United Land," Is the same as He planned For Old Albany.

STAND BY YOUR TOWN

If you think your town's the best, Tell 'em so. If you'd have her lead the rest, Help her grow.

When there's anything to do Let the fellows count on you. You'll feel bully when it's through, Don't you know?

If you want to make a hit, Get a name; If the other fellow's it, Who's to blame?

Spend your money in your town, Thus keep your prices down— Give the mail concerns a frown— That's the game!

If you're used to giving knooks, Change your style; Throw bouquets instead of rocks, For a while.

Let the other fellow roast, Shun him as you would a ghost, Meet him with a knock with a boast, And a smile.

When a stranger from afar Comes along, Tell him who and what you are— Make it strong.

Needn't flatter, never bluff; Needn't truth, for that's enough, Join the boosters—they're the stuff, Change your style.

Mrs. Calvin Cummings

Mrs. Calvin Cummings, 62, passed away Friday, at her home in Albany, where she has been ill for a long time.

She was born in Grafton, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Freeland Bartlett, and was one of a family of ten children.

At the age of 26 she married Calvin Cummings of Albany, and to the union four children were born, Freeland, who lives at home and Sherman who is married and lives in Rutland, Mass., and Louisa, who married Fred Tibbets and resides in Rumford Point and Ronell who stays at home. Mr. and Mrs. Cummings have resided in Bethel and Albany nearly all of their married life. She was a member of the Bethel W. R. C. and attended the Methodist Church.

Mrs. Cummings has not been in good health for some time, but has made a brave fight to stay with her family. Services were held at her late home Monday at 2 o'clock, the Rev. C. B. Oliver officiated. Burial was in the family lot in Evergreen cemetery not far from her late home. She leaves a husband, three sons and one daughter, also several grandchildren who will sadly miss her. S. S. Greenleaf had charge of the services.

A real old fashioned storm reminds us that winter bids a lingering good-bye. Mrs. William Farwell and her daughter, Mrs. Wallace Wright, will continue to run the ice cream parlor on Main Street. Emma Marshall has opened the spring term of school in the upper district, Sunday River, Newry; she has taught the previous terms there for the year.

Mrs. Mary Godwin remains about the same as a few days ago but does not gain.

Robert Farwell has returned to Rumford after spending some time with his mother, Mrs. W. L. Farwell. Inez Ellwell spent the week end with her people at West Paris.

FRYEBURG

Dana Brown and wife who have lived in Fryeburg several years, went to Rochester, N. H., last week, where Mr. Brown has a fine position. Mr. and Mrs. Brown have many friends who felt badly to have them leave town. They were exemplary citizens and ready at all times to aid every good cause. The best wishes of their fellow workers go with them.

It is with profound regret the news is received from Florida that Mrs. Henry Brown is failing rapidly.

Charles Fox and wife and Ned Fox and wife, Mrs. Brown's nephews, have gone to St. Petersburg and if Mrs. Brown is able she will accompany them home.

Mrs. Eben Fox is also very poorly. Mrs. George O. Warren is visiting relatives in Massachusetts.

Mrs. Frank Killon is entertaining her mother, Mrs. Crouse from Thomaston.

Merely by a push of the foot you can control the John Deere-Syracuse Two-Way Plow so that the bottoms can do a good job of plowing on hillsides, on level land, in nooks and corners of irregular fields, around stones and other obstructions.

JOHN DEERE
Syracuse Two-Way Plow
Built in the East for the East

The John Deere-Syracuse Two-Way Plow is equipped with one right and one left-hand bottom. Each bottom may be used alternately, and the plow operated back and forth across the field, throwing the soil all one way.

With this plow you can do away with dead furrows and back ridges, where these are not desired.

The Syracuse Two-Way is practically self-operating. The next time you are in town stop in and inspect it. Get on the seat. Shift the levers—notice particularly the patented Auto Foot Frame Shift, regulating width of furrow, controlled by a slight pressure on the foot levers. The Clevis Shift and the Horse Lift are both automatic.

Syracuse Features.

Syracuse bottoms—the bottoms that always fit perfectly and do a good job of plowing.

Made in different styles to meet every soil condition.

Wheels set wide apart—better than narrow tread for hillside work.

A PRAYER FOR SERVICE

I do not pray, dear Lord, for riches,
Nor pomp, nor power the world can give;
I do not ask to be exalted
In this, the little life I live.

Let others have their wealth and station,
For worldly goods I'll not repine,
Such things I shall not miss, my prayer is only
This:

May the world be better for this life of mine!
O, may I help some poor weak brother
Whose feet have stumbled on the road;
Give me the strength to ease the burden
Of hearts bowed down beneath their load!

The weight of sorrow all about me,
I fear would lighten if I can
For this I humbly pray as I tread life's earthly way.

O teach me how to serve my fellow man!
—VERNE M. WHITMAN.

This little anthem was recently composed and set to music by Mr. Whitman and sung by him in churches and before assemblies in Laconia, N. H., his home city, where it was received with great acclaim. It is to be published by a Boston Music House.

FAITH, HOPE AND CHARITY

Oh, give us the faith that will help us along
When we come to the end of the day,
The faith that will carry us through this life,
Though dark and weary the way we go.

Faith in the Father, the friend and the foe,
Faith when we cannot see,
Faith that the Lord and Savior had
When He walked on the waves of the sea.

Faith and Hope in our Father's love,
Hope for His children here
In trouble and sorrow we come to Thee,
We hope for your help for us here.

Hope in the heart makes the way good bright
Hope for the friends so dear,
That we all may meet at the Savior's feet,
When our trials are ended here.

Faith, Hope and Charity, greatest of all the three,
Charity suffereth long and is kind,
To the fallen wherever they be,
Charity makes us the friend to all,
Ever on land and sea.

Charity covers the many sins, that our eyes
may never see;
Faith, Hope and Charity, ever a blessing will be.

Faith, Hope, and "Charity," greatest of all the three.
MRS. VIOLA HERRICK, W. Paris, Me.

THE STAR SPANGLED BANNER

Oh! say, can you see by the dawn's early light,
What so proudly we hail at the twilight's last gleaming?

Whose broad stripes and bright stars through the perilous fight,
O'er the ramparts we watched, were so gallantly streaming?

And the rockets' red glare, the bombs bursting in air,
Gave proof through the night that our flag
was still there,

Oh! say, does that star spangled banner yet
wave,
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave?

On the shore dimly seen through the mist of the deep,
Where the foe's haughty host in dread silence
reposes,

What is that which the breeze, o'er the towering sleep,
Says with a fitful blow, half conceals, half discloses?

Now it catches the gleam of the morning's first beam,
In full glory reflected now shines on the stream.

Oh, say, does that star spangled banner yet
wave,
O'er the land of the free, and the home of the brave?

Oh! thus be it ever, when freemen shall stand Between their loved homes and the war's desolace,

Blest with vict'ry and peace, may the heav'n
receded land,
Praise the power that hath made and preserved us a nation;

Then conquer we must, for our cause it is just,
And this be our motto: "In God is our trust!"

FRYEBURG HARBOR

On Wednesday, April 2, at the Methodist parsonage, Fryeburg Harbor, Lester W. Walker and Alice M. Eastman, both of Lovell, were united in marriage by Rev. Walter A. Smith.

Because of the absence of the pastor, Rev. W. A. Smith, who is attending the annual session of the Maine Methodist Conference which is being held in Portland this week, there will be no preaching services at Fryeburg Harbor and North Fryeburg on Sunday, April 13. Services will be resumed on Sunday, April 20, that Sunday being Easter, the sermon and music will be appropriate to this special Sunday and a large attendance is earnestly desired.

Many a great nation succumbed while pointing to itself with pride.

BIRD'S ROOFS

Regular Roofs for Regular Men

YOU want a regular roof for your house, garage, bungalow, cottage, barn or factory and we've got that roof.

Bird's Roofs will make good for you just as they have made good for thousands of others, and just as they have made good for us.

We say Bird's Roofs will make good for you because we know from long experience that they last for years and years, and that folks who own them like their looks and honest wear so much that they are eager to tell their friends what big value they are.

Whether you need Bird's Paroid, Bird's Shingle Design Roofing, Bird's Plain Slate Surfaced, Bird's Granitized Roofings, or Bird's Twin Shingles, we can prove that in the long run Bird's Roofs cost little for the service they give.

Then the Fruit Treatment—"Fruit-a-tives"
Brought Complete Relief

It is simply marvellous how successful the Fruit Treatment is in overcoming chronic troubles, like Constipation, Dyspepsia and Rheumatism.

The juices of apples, oranges, figs and prunes—intensified and combined with tonics—are made into small tablets called "Fruit-a-tives" which have proven the marvels of the medical world for many diseases.

For instance, Mr. James A. Sheil, 80 Oakhill Ave., Waterbury, Conn., says: "I recommend 'Fruit-a-tives' to anyone suffering from chronic Constipation. Having suffered for ten years, and receiving little relief from specialists, I at last have been helped by your good tablets."

Your dealer has "Fruit-a-tives"—25c. and 50c. a box—sent postpaid by Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ogdensburg, N.Y.

"The Car for Everyone"

says noted "MOTOR" authority

The New Essex possesses many qualities which I did not believe could be incorporated in a closed car selling for $975.

"It is a type long needed in this country. It possesses grace and beauty, can travel at sustained high speed without passenger discomfort, is surprisingly economical to operate and does not cost much to buy.

"It is unusually smooth, accelerates better than the previous Essex, and is saying a great deal, and is 'the' car for everyone."—H. A. Tarantous, in MOTOR.

LETTER FROM VIRGINIA

In the following letter received by Mrs. E. A. Cox from her sister, Miss Annie Hobbs, who is doing missionary work in Virginia, she tells something of the life and conditions in the mountain districts. Lower Pocason Mission, McMullen, Virginia.

March 3rd, 1924.

My dear sister: Will write a few lines to you before going to bed. These are great days. Took my lunch to school with me and spent nearly one-half hour with the children in the woods getting the air and junking up something for kindling for our schoolroom fire mornings. It is lovely and warm now with only a trace of the little snow and ice which fell two weeks ago. It seems so queer to me to go out mornings and find the air so balmy. When the air comes into the house it seems much colder.

I love the teaching of youngsters. Am so pleased with my beginners. They are reading with such good expression and know the punctuation marks and what they mean, also are using the right inflection of voice. Miss Edwards went to a funeral to-day, started about ten and got there about one o'clock. Had to leave the horses when near the place and cross two streams on logs. The house was a one room affair with a lean-to. She said in all her mountain work this case seemed the saddest. The woman who had died was about thirty-five years old and had always had fits. She leaves a boy of eight years, who also has fits, and her mother who is not exactly normal. Neither of them had ever been married. The mother feels so terribly in that desolate place, no neighbors in sight of the house and those at a distance are a very undesirable class. The night her daughter was dying some of them removed stones from the underpinning of the house and hid their bottles of liquor there. At the services one man was so drunk he wanted to get into a fight. The mission above us has a lot of that to contend with. We have but little in this compared with the others.

Miss Knight at the upper mission is a brave little woman and faces much which I would not dare to.

Will close now, with much love, Annie.

THE LOCAL NEWSPAPER

The local newspaper in the town of average size is a most excellent medium for advertising purposes and merchants should make better use of this very important business producing factor. As a general thing, as is the newspaper, so is the town. If the newspaper of a town does not amount to much, it is the fault of the merchants of that town. The merchants of a town must support their newspaper. Many an otherwise good town is worth but little because of neglect in this respect.

Many a well-located town, that could be made into an excellent merchandising center, is dead because the men in business there treat the editor of their newspaper as an object of charity.

The newspaper in a community is read by the people. They learn to watch for and wait for it. When it comes, every member of the family waits his turn to see what it says. Are they mentioned in it? Is anything said about any of their friends? This paper is read and, according to the value of the news and information in it, either increases or decreases in its popularity.

Often you hear, "Oh, pshaw, there is nothing in the Eagle any more, what is the use of taking it?" When this stage of a newspaper's career is reached, it is time the merchants of a town were looking after its patronage.

Not only are the news items and other information in the local paper—be it ever so poor—read, but the advertisements are read also. Many merchants do not believe this. Let a merchant ask any one, or a dozen, of his lady customers what was in a certain merchant's advertisement in the last issue, and she will tell him exactly what was offered.

Some people are disappointed if their names do not appear in the paper when they have been visiting, or have visitors, even if these same people have not acquainted the editor with this particular news item. Here then is where the merchants can help out. When anything of this nature comes to their attention, they should see to it that the paper will read and appreciate it and the people to whom the item has reference will be pleased, very much so. This makes better friends and better readers for the paper; and that is what is needed.

An editor with this sort of support will get up a good paper; he will continually improve it. The paper will be read, and, if your advertisement is in it, this will also be read; and if it is a good live, virile advertisement, it is bound to sell goods; for people will read and, if a desire is created, they will buy; they just must have the goods advertised.

The right kind of an editor is always ready to do anything for the benefit of the town. He will do more than he is paid for, as will any public-spirited man; but he can only succeed when the town is prospering. And a town can only prosper if the merchants of that town are alive, wide-awake advertisers.

No merchant of the town should "knock." Even if "knocking" is necessary, it strikes the fault-finder the hardest; for he himself is the prime cause of the circumstances that called forth the knocking in the original instance. It is a merchant's duty to support and help the home paper in every possible way, to "boost" it, for he will be the direct financial gainer in the end.

It is a literal truth that a newspaper returns to the advertiser a dollar for every cent he puts into it, regardless of the direct custom he may derive from his advertising. The editor, appreciating the fact that the merchants are willing to spend money to get business and are endeavoring to keep the business in their town, is certainly going to keep up his end of the bargain by making his paper so interesting as to induce all his townspeople to read it—and he will not be financially obligated to out-of-town sellers.

What Boosting Does

This is not theory, but actual fact. Any live town can prove this claim, and, in fact, many an apparently dead town has been made into an excellent trading center by such means. One merchant of course cannot do this alone. When action is needed—and every town does need it, even the best ones—business men's association should be formed and these matters thoroughly discussed.

The two greatest factors in making this country the biggest, the best, and the most enlightened in the world are the public schools and the local newspapers. And every town's success depends upon these two factors; therefore, those whose living depends upon the town's success should not neglect either. This matter is important, very important, in these days of parcel post and mail order competition, centralization of power, and the like. The retail merchant must preserve his individuality and in no other way can this be accomplished as readily as by means of the local newspaper.

I'M CALLING YOU

I am the best friend of mankind. To the man who prizes sanity, peacefulness, pure-mindedness, social standing and longevity, I am a necessity.

I am hung with sweet memories—memories of brides—memories of mothers—memories of boys and girls—memories of the aged as they grope their way down the shadows. I am decked with loving tears—crowned by happy hands and hearts. In the minds of the greatest men of earth find a constant dwelling place. I live in the lives of the young and in the dreams of the old. I safeguard man through all his paths—from the first hour life's sun slants upon his footprints until the purple gathers in the west and the darkness falls. I lift up the fallen. I strengthen the weak. I help the distressed. I show mercy, bestow kindness and offer a friendly hand to the man in purple and fine linen and the man in homespun.

I am the essence of good fellowship, friendliness and love. I give gifts that gold cannot buy, nor kings take away. They are given freely to all that ask. I bring back the freshness of life, the eagerness, the spirit of youth that feels that it has something to live for ahead.

I meet you with outstretched arms and with words of gladness.

Some time, some day—some hour—in the far future, you will yearn for the touch of my friendly hand. I am your comforter and your best friend, I'm calling you. I'm the church.

WHY AND HOW WE GROW BEETS

In the first place we grow beets to feed our cows and heifers during official test work. We have found that while feeding an increased amount of grain the adding of beets to the ration makes it practically safe to feed this larger amount of grain. I am not overstating the growing of beets because I think they are a cheap crop to grow compared with silage, but you must remember there are many silage corn to good advantage but could grow beets.

We find the reason for the high cost of growing beets, is the large amount of hand labor that has to be used in hoeing, thinning and harvesting the crop. It is only fair for me to say that what knowledge I may have in growing beets I got many years ago at the College of Agriculture and Farmers' Week from Mr. Osgood who knew how to grow beets for market.

We select a piece of land that was cultivated the year before, corn is a good crop to follow with beets, one of the main things is to have your land as free from weeds as possible.

This land we dress with a good crop of barn manure and plow under in the fall. In the spring we put on another fair coat and pulverize as well as the ground is right to work, and continue to pulverize as needed until time to plant. We have had the best success with early planted crops, so we plan to get our beets planted some two weeks before our corn.

When the time and land is right we broadcast about 175 pounds 5-8-7 or 4-5-4 to the acre and thoroughly work this into the soil. We must remember the beet is a tiny plant when it first comes up out of the ground and must have a fine seed bed. Now comes one of the secrets of beet growing, perhaps you have already learned, if not it is this: We take our two horses to the hoe that we will use to hoe the row, and we take our land roller and roll the piece lengthwise of the rows. Now if we have done our work thoroughly we have got an ideal seed bed, all ready for the hand seed drill, which we set at work as soon as possible, for the reason we want to get the seed into the moist soil at once, for the nature of the beet seed calls for moisture as well as heat to make it germinate and come up quickly.

I have said nothing about quality of seed, for I assume we all realize we must have the best. In due time if we have done our work well and the seed was good, weather favorable, we will have a stand of beets, if we should have a little light frost after they are up they will not mind it.

As soon as you can see the plants you can go through with a one horse cultivator set narrow, and follow with the hoe and cut any weeds on the side of the ridge, and follow this method as often as necessary until time to thin that is when it takes a lot of time and care to do it. It is right, you have to look out and not thin when it is too hot and dry.

When it comes to thinning our method would be a little different than the one growing beets for market. You can readily see that when you have got to pull and remove the top from every beet, the larger they are and less in number the less cost in harvesting and handling, and are thing more weight per acre, so we thin for that object.

News From F. H. Noyes

When I wrote you last Tuesday, March 26, I said we would leave St. Petersburg, Tuesday, April 1, but changed our minds and concluded to stop a week longer. We will leave here Tuesday, April 8, going to Tampa. We will stop on our way at different places expecting to arrive in Norway the last days of April.

Festival of States was celebrated here Thursday and Friday, March 27 and 28. It was a great event. Floats in the street were very nice and attractive. The tourists are leaving fast now. It is beautiful, warm summer time now. Mercury 65 to 80 in the shade.

Went to see Frank McCarthy today. He is failing. Wishes he could go North. That will never be, and he knows it. Poor fellow, I am sorry for him. One by one we are going.

Geo. Devine told me yesterday they would start North, April 18, which is earlier than they expected. Howard Maxim has a good job. Will probably stay here this summer and next winter.

Elizabeth Crockett Blake Tent, Daughters of Veterans, are to serve a public dinner at K. of P. Hall, Friday. At supper time, 6:30 o'clock, there will be a ten cent supper for the members followed by the regular lodge meeting. Full rehearsal will be held and a large attendance is urged.

Harry Rust Women's Relief Corps held regular session last Thursday evening at Legion Hall. Plans were discussed for Memorial Day, and committees were appointed for the next meeting, April 17. A penny social and a "Clipping Party" were among the attractions of the evening and were much enjoyed.

Mrs. Cyrus S. Tucker entertained the Barton Reading Club, Thursday afternoon. Magazine reading was taken up. The meeting of last week was the annual social afternoon. Following the roll call with current events, the hostess, Mrs. Elizabeth Andrews, assisted, by her daughter, Miss Nellie Andrews, carried out a program with guessing games, and other interesting features and inviting the members to the dining room for ice cream and cake, a happy supper.

Percy Grover was here Wednesday from East Stoneham with a six horse team and a load for V. H. Littlefield. He reported roads as is usual in "mud time." He handled the reins much like Uncle Mose, his master, who his horses were better looked after.

We have had some maple syrup from Vermont and it was good. Zeb Merchant came from that state as did Calvin Collier, and his home friends remembered him with a generous supply and he turned some over to us as a sample.

Carpenter work on the Legion building is temporarily delayed while waiting for iron girders. The work will be rushed to completion when another ship can be made.

Mrs. and Mr. J. Edward Shepard have a little daughter born in Portland. She is named Mary Elvira for her two grandmothers.

Norway Klansmen Gave Demonstration

A blazing cross and a brass band was the curtain raiser for the Ku Klux Klan lecture at Norway Opera House Wednesday evening. W. H. Klein of Portland, formerly of Akron, Ohio, spoke before an audience of about 500 men and women and held the closest attention for two hours and more.

The evening program opened with a concert on the street by the Norway-Klansmen. Before the first selection was played, a huge cross erected on Pike's Hill blazed out in a manner to attract attention over a wide area. Crowds gathered at vantage points to witness the fiery spectacle.

A program in the Opera House opened with selections by the band including "America," by a prayer by Mr. Baker, W. H. Klein appeared as a substitute for P. Eugene Parnass, King Keagle of Maine, entered upon his plea for Americans to save America.

The keynote of his able discourse was the immigration question in the light of the facts. The speaker argued even under the present law, hordes from European countries are arriving faster than we can absorb them. He stated, if this continues, native born Americans will themselves be absorbed within 50 years.

According to Mr. Klein, comparatively few foreigners locating in large cities have become real citizens. They gather into racial groups, retaining their language, customs and creed ideals. Their idea of America is liberty without law, and making money.

The speaker was very kindly disposed toward the Catholic faith and granted the conscientious behavior of that faith the privilege allowed under our constitution. Any cult or organization working under the name "religion" has a right to exist so long as state or federal laws are respected. When any "machine" in the guise of religion become so powerful as to disregard law and the constitution, it must be checked.

America is founded on a belief in Almighty God, the Protestant Bible and the constitution, exclaimed the speaker. The little red schoolhouse came from this trinity and the home has been made a sacred place because of this three-in-one foundation. The Eight Fathers made it possible to establish a government represented by the stars and stripes, and not Columbus, was Mr. Klein's emphatic statement.

Advice for Norway High School Boys
I. Cigarettes or tobacco in any form hinders the growth and injures the nerves and health.

II. Cigarettes foster the tobacco habit, and may make anyone a slave to it.

III. The cigarette habit does not help a boy in his life work, and may prevent him from obtaining a good position in business.

IV. The most reliable business establishments refuse to employ boys who smoke cigarettes.

V. The following are among the poisons used in the cigarettes: arsenic, creosote, nicotine, opium, salt, petrol, and many others.

VI. Cigarette smoking makes a boy dull and stupid, impairs his memory and prevents his advance in school.

VII. Smoking creates an unnatural thirst, which may lead to drinking in taverning liquors.

VIII. Smoking is a selfish habit, which may cause annoyance, discomfort, and distress to others.

IX. Tobacco affects the eye, ear, nose, or sight, hearing and smelling and also the heart.

X. It costs more than most boys can afford to pay to have their nerves and health ruined.

XI. Smoking is a useless and expensive habit and always does harm in a greater or less degree.

XII. It is also a filthy habit and defiles the body, and anything that defiles or injures the body is a sin against God, who created man in his own image.

Ancient Hand Forged Jackknife
We got a new knife. It is new to us but old in looks. As Uncle Eph said, "It looks as though it had been in the world a long time." It has a razor-steel blade and a hilt of maple.

You can shave, cut your throat or fingers with it as you see fit. The nose is envied by all Weary Club members. A. S. Kneeland, Yarmouthville, was the giver. Thanks.

We invite him to call and see the knife in action.

PUBLIC HEALTH WORK

The 1923 annual report of the Executive Officer of the Maine Public Health Association to the Board of Directors, members and contributors, includes the following interesting data concerning the Maine Public Health Association which is composed of the local health societies and committees throughout the State:

During 1923 local health nurses associated with certification were called to the bedside of 21,556 sick Maine men, women and children. In addition to this work the nurses gave health inspection to 12,400 school children and of this number 8,005 were found to have verifiable physical defects. Following the discovery of these defects, the nurses held conferences with parents to help as much as possible in having these defects remedied.

Nearly 40,000 boys and girls were helped to train themselves in health-promoting habits through the daily health "chapters" of the Modern Health Crusade.

This brings the number of Maine boys and girls who have been helped in this way to more than 110,000.

Lecture courses on conservation of vision were conducted at the University of Maine and the State Normal Training School at Castine. Lectures on various health subjects were delivered before classes at the University, the normal schools and colleges. Health lectures concerning the protection of health and the prevention of sickness were delivered to Maine audiences arranged by women's clubs, parent-teacher associations, granges and farm bureaus. The total of these audiences exceeded 100,000 persons.

More than 200,000 pieces of health literature were distributed, a considerable part of this total in Maine's mills and factories. These health pamphlets included the following subjects: "The Prevention of Tuberculosis," "Diet for the Groving Child," "The Control of Cancer," "Care of the Teeth," "Helps for the Expectant Mother," etc. Health exhibits reaching audiences totaling more than 30,000 were held in nearly 100 Maine cities and towns. "The Jolly Jester," health teacher for children, was routed for a six week's trip in ten Maine counties reaching more than 31,000 boys and girls. A section of the Maine Public Health Association, designated as the child health section, was formed. The section has undertaken a broad program of work for children beginning with prenatal work among mothers as well as work for protecting the health of infants and school children. Included in this program is the state-wide activities on behalf of crippled children.

The report also includes the audit accounts showing the receipt of a total of $27,806 and the expenditure of $27,068. Of this amount $12,913 came through contributions of interested individuals, clubs, granges and manufacturers and the balance from the proportion of the returns from the sale of Christmas Seals which the M. P. H. A. receives. A tribute to the thousands of local workers who are making Maine's health progress possible, concludes the report.

If you don't care much about the institution of work, don't go into the dairy business. We have never known a successful dairyman who was not a glutton for work.

NORWAY AND VICINITY

Anxious to Visit Grandpa

Clara Carter, aged 12 years, daughter of Guy N. Carter of Revere, Mass., is anxious to visit her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. George W. Carter, 33 Deering St., Norway.

It is foretold and planning a campaign for way down next summer and anticipating great pleasure. A little girl friend, who has never enjoyed country life, has been included in the vacation trip. Clara is also thought of as the welfare of "Nana" and Grandpa as the following letter to Mrs. George Carter will show.

"Dear Nana: I hope you and Grandpa are well. We are all feeling fine. I went to the movies last night in Lynn and saw Daddy on the screen. The picture he was in was a shoe machinery piece. It seemed awful funny to see Daddy on the screen.

We are having a snow storm up here. As it is of no use to ask Grandpa to come up, we are going to ask you. If you will come up for a month or two, I will gladly come down and keep house for Grandpa. I am sure I could do it, for I would try all the harder because I would know that you were up here to profit, rest and not worry over the house down there. If you would come, we thought that Daddy might bring me down in the car and could bring you back.

Oh, by the way, there is a girl up here I think you have heard me speak of. Her name is May Black. She is the only one I play with up this way, because the rest of the kids are awful fresh. I wondered if you cared if she came down when you come up to our house. I mean both of us together. I am sure you would find her no bother for she is a good, honest girl. She has never been out of the city and is the only companion I have. But, if you do not want her, tell me so, although I would like to give her a vacation. Ask Grandpa if he cares, tell him we would not wake him up early in the morning, and she will not always be pecking out and in among things. I am sure every one will love her. She is a fine girl.

May. We most always play by ourselves. Well, answer soon so that we can make our plans for the summer, for sometimes Daddy has to know a long way ahead of time so he can get a few days off to come down after you. Love to all, Clara Carter.

FEDERAL GOVERNMENT SHOULD BUILD ROADS

That which serves all the people should be paid for by all the people. That which is paid for by all the people should be under the control of all the people.

These are self-evident truths. We act by them when we build a Panama Canal, set aside and care for an area of natural beauty as a public park, give land to a transcontinental railroad, establish and run an Army and a Navy, and conduct a Postal system.

The entire Nation pays to build and maintain a Navy to protect New York and other seacoast cities. The people of a great many States never see a battle ship during their entire lives. There is no valid objection to this, because everyone realizes that the capture or ruin of the seacoast cities would affect the entire Nation.

The same principle holds in the construction of a national system of good roads. The whole Nation will benefit vastly from good roads—in increased development of natural resources.

The money spent on rivers is all paid by the Federal Government from general taxation, yet this traffic is only a small fraction of the traffic along our improved highways, and its benefits are proportionally small.

To the farmer, a hard road means more than any other Federal activity, even the Postal Service. It is a convenience to get his mail promptly, but a good road makes it possible for him to raise his farm or dairy at a much higher rate of production and greater profit, gives him and his family more of the comforts and luxuries of life, helps his children to get a better education, and raises his entire standard of living.

Why contend that roads, a public utility for all people, should be left to different groups of people to develop, when Postal Service, Army, Navy, and the projected superpower system are admitted to be national affairs.

Increased Traffic Brings Higher Type Highways

Better city streets have taught vehicle users to demand better suburban roads. The requirements for the country road are not as drastic of for the street in the municipality, but they are much closer than they were ten or fifteen years ago.

For fast moving traffic city pavements must be smooth, not only to permit the rapid and comfort movement of vehicles but to conserve fuel and tires. A slight saving in the operating cost per vehicle reaches a large aggregate when the vast number of motor cars is considered which justify a considerable outlay to obtain smoothness.

This factor gets bigger every year, in county road specifications.

Impact attracts the attention of engineers to an increasing degree. A wheel with a drop of 1 inch when in motion delivers a blow equivalent to six times the dead weight. City engineers, therefore, attach increasing importance to the resiliency of pavements to take up the shock of impact.

County road engineers build more flexible every year.

It is almost impossible to close an important street to traffic for any time. The engineer must, therefore, select his type with care, repairs in mind. Even when possible to detour traffic to the extra fuel over a comparatively short space of time adds enormously to the cost of the pavement.

Quick repairability is now much considered in county-road design.

Uniform Traffic Laws on National Highways

Traffic laws which differ in different States and in different towns in the same State, are a cause of confusion, accident, loss of property, and loss of life. Uniform traffic laws, the same the country over, will promote safety.

The objection urged against uniform traffic laws that traffic conditions are different in different localities, does not hold in the face of the obvious power of the locality to modify or add to the uniform law for special conditions. There are many observances which, made uniform, would make for safety, such as the system of signalling for a stop, slow up and turn, a uniform rule as to the right of way at crossings, safety procedure at grade crossings, a heavy penalty for such dangerous practices as passing another car when coming to a curve or top of a hill, etc.

With forty-eight States and thousands of municipalities, all making their own traffic rules, the motorist is more or less at sea as to what he can and cannot, should and should not do. But when the National Government builds roads for the Nation, a national traffic law will be inevitable as a national police force for the national highways.

"A paved United States in our day" is not only to be devoutly wished for, because of the material benefits it will bring, but because of the safety the uniformity of traffic rules will provide, when the Congress authorizes a system of national highways which will serve all the counties in that State.

How much will the housewife need during the coming months?

Failure to estimate this fairly accurately will make him lose caste as a gardener at the family council. No excuses can be accepted for running out of

Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Stopped Her Suffering and Restored Her Health

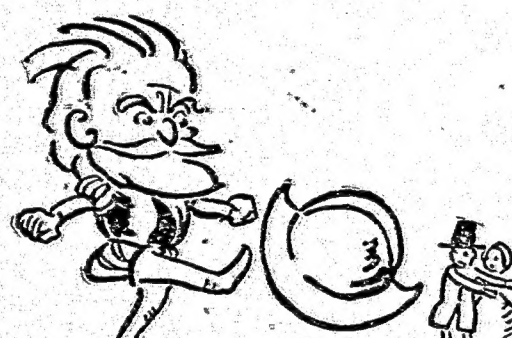

Momence, Illinois.—"I surely can recommend your medicine to other women who have female weakness, as it has helped me very much in every way possible. I was working in a dining room in town, and sometimes I could not do my work; I had pains in the lower part of my body and had to stay in bed. One of my neighbors told me what good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for her, and it has surely done wonders for me. I hope all women who suffer will take my advice as the Vegetable Compound has done so much to bring back my vigor and strength."—Mrs. ALBERT E. DESCHAUD, Momence, Illinois.

Over 121,000 women have so far replied to our question, "Have you received benefit from taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound?" 98 per cent. of these replies answer "Yes." OXFORD

Oxford Sanatorium Destroyed by Fire

The Oxford Spring House on Allen Hill, near Oxford Village, was burned early Sunday afternoon, together with two large barns. Loss is estimated at $40,000 partially covered by insurance. The property was owned by Mrs. Farris, widow of Dr. H. R. Farris of Oxford, Dr. William Haskell of Lewiston and Dr. Ray Goodwin of Auburn.

The three-story wooden structure was formerly a popular summer resort, but during the past four or five years had been the home of many World War Veterans under treatment for tuberculosis. At the time of the fire, thirty-three veterans with Dr. E. B. Sullivan and two nurses were at the hospital. The vestry of the Methodist Episcopal Church at Oxford was turned into temporary quarters and many homes received the vets. So far as can be learned, the ex-soldiers saved most of their personal effects. Only one patient was bed ridden but he was removed to the home of Mrs. Farris.

The Oxford Fire Department with apparatus from the Robinson Mfg. Co. was on the scene early but could do little to check the flames, owing to the long distance from the water supply. A strong south wind swept the hill top and carried blazing embers a considerable distance.

Directly after the fire, members of the Women's Relief Corps at Oxford set to work and provided supper for the homeless vets. Women of the American Legion Auxiliary also rendered all possible aid.

A chimney burning out is believed to have started the fire. When discovered the roof was ablaze and made considerable headway before an alarm for help could be phoned to the Oxford center.

It is understood this structure was erected by Mrs. Isabel Pease of Brookton, Mass., on the site of a former hotel owned by her and destroyed by fire some thirty years ago. A few years after, she rebuilt the property reverted by a foreclosure to the Saco and Biddeford Savings Bank. It had been closed about five years when purchased by the three physicians.

PIGEON HILL

Mrs. Mary Denning Hall

Mary Denning Hall died March 26th after being confined to her bed for six months. She was born in Mechanic Falls Nov. 8, 1869, receiving her education in the common schools and later graduating at Hebron Academy. She was a very successful teacher in many surrounding towns. Later she taught in Massachusetts where she became acquainted with Horace Hall, a native of Oxford, whom she married in 1893.

They resided in Baldwinville where Mr. Hall was bookkeeper in a large chair manufacturing company. In 1897 he severed his connections there and came to Oxford where he acted as bookkeeper for J. B. Robinson's woolen mill until his death in 1913.

One son was born to them, William Kelsey Hall, who is a graduate of Bowdoin and is now working in Brunswick. Mrs. Hall was placed in the tomb and later will be buried in the family lot at Maple Grove Cemetery.

The flowers were beautiful, especially the wreaths from neighbors and friends. Rev. Odell Bryant of the Methodist Episcopal Church officiated. The bearers were C. K. Denning, William Hall, Charles March and Clarence March.

Mrs. Francette Burns, who has been at C. K. Denning's for the past month, has returned to her home in Kittery.

Dennis Martin of Rumford attended Pomona and is stopping with his brother Orin for a few days.

Mr. and Mrs. George H. McKenney of Mt. Vernon were guests of Mrs. McKenney's sister, Mrs. C. K. Denning, last week.

Bert and Herbert Mayberry are building a brooder house; hatching chicks is the order of the day.

Richard Tyner is expecting 500 day old chicks from the Red Feather Farm, Norway.

Mrs. George Tyner bought 200 day old chicks of Mrs. Howard Coy.

C. K. Denning has two fine litters of pigs.

Clifford Tyner had the misfortune to slip and break his leg. He was taken to the Sisters' Hospital.

A. D. Thayer is working on the town's valuation in Oxford.

Mrs. A. D. Thayer is assisting her daughter, Mrs. Golderman, in settling her house at Mechanic Falls for house-keeping.

Mrs. Clarence Grafton is gaining.

HOW TO WRITE A POEM

By Fred M. Davis

More than once I have been asked this question, "How do you write a poem?" It is true there is no manual for poem writing. Books have been published showing words that rhyme with each other but nothing as yet that proves of much value to the writer. People who write poems or do unusual things are generally handicapped as being dippy or, as I would say, "nut," but slang is not down in my dictionary, therefore, I do not use it.

On the contrary, a person to write a standard poem must be of sound mind and the false ideas expressed above are without foundation.

Let me say it requires thought in the beginning. Generally my first thoughts on building a poem dawn on me through some action or the common everyday walks of life. My poem, "Give Me A Day," was first thought of one day as I looked from my home across the meadow that contains many acres of mowing country, the opening lines are as follows:

Give me a day to steal away
Across the meadow green,
In summer time when the weather's fine
And babbling brooks are seen.

Simple enough though it seems, think it out as you go along. No one ever wrote anything yet until they had first thought it out. I think you will agree that we all find joy in thinking good things even if they cannot be enacted, and so we continue to the second verse.

Where buttercups and daisies grow
Across the fields so wide,
Where gentle breezes always blow
Along the mountain side.

A poem is not written while your mind is at random, the job is not done while words flow carelessly from your pen. Something else you must have. Perhaps it is safe to say you must have or exercise deep thought and power of mind to make up the material or makings for a good poem. Many of my poems have been completed during a period of twenty-four hours, some are done in a week, while others have required much longer.

It depends largely on the spare time I have and the mood I may be in. Most people know that different days, the same piece of work is done much easier. Verses are made up as I go about my work during the day and written down as the thought or idea comes to me just as a preacher writes his sermon. He dwells on a chosen subject through the week, gathers the material and as Sunday draws near he arranges it just a bit and thus the job is done. Simple if you like it, and truly interesting.

Skipping to the last verse which is number six, we find that the lines read as follows:

To find new life from the world of strife,
With the best of men,
To add strength and vim to my soul within,
'Tis the steady knock that kills.

The price of some of my longer poems has been much mightier oil and the loss of balmy sleep and were based entirely on imagination. One of these I mention is entitled "His Last Heavy Load."

Pardon me, when I tell you that although this rhyme is based entirely on imagination, my eyes were wet before I had a chance to finish some of the closing lines. Realistic as it is, however, telling the story of a heartless wretch and the cruelty practiced on a dumb beast. I often dwell on a title for weeks only waiting a chance to jot down my ideas and picture it out before my eyes as it lies before me, but the field is large and seems to be without limit.

The reader will bear in mind that some of the best works of old time poets were completed when their hair was snowy white. I have read that it took Gray seventeen years to write "Gray's Elegy." I could not question this when I look at this wonderful piece of work.

When my poem entitled "When We Are Gone" was published years ago, a man said to me these words, "that is an old English poem." But I expected that I would refer you to that old-time quotation, "No man is without honor except—." I don't need to go any farther as most of you know the rest. A knock that we must all learn to expect and I think that you will agree with me that it only helps achievement on to victory. I was fair with him, I gave him the rest of 'is life to look in any book, magazine or newspaper in the found a single line like mine I would be willing to undergo any ordeal he might name. Here I will quote the first lines of my latest poem entitled "The Old-Time Blacksmith."

Just down the street I often meet
The blacksmith bent and old,
With business gone he looks forlorn,
His forehead is all white.

I believe care should be taken on any occasion where a recitation is given not to keep your hearers a long time guessing whether you are reading prose or a poem. Such practice is not interesting to any audience. Only lines that rhyme can rightfully be called poetry, no matter what style it may be written without rhythm it is not poetry. A comedian once repeated a poem to an audience where I was lucky enough to be present, and it caused more laughter than anything I had ever witnessed before. Why did it please? Because the reader did not try to cheat his hearers, he gave them a chance, as the writer intended, to enjoy the true life of the poem, the rhythm.

Your recitation can be made plain and easily understood if you will make a short pause at the end of lines and not clip the ends of lines too abruptly.

It has already been said that no one renders a work of art as the composer does. When I hear Walter Rote of Rumford, Me., play his world famous waltz, "Kiss of Spring," do I expect it will sound the same as it does when others play it. No, of course not, no one renders it just like himself. I have noticed many times in the past that in sending articles to publishers that the sender often makes an unpropitious mistake. One case I remember distinctly, last Christmas I read in a local newspaper where some person referred to that world famous poem, "The Night Before Christmas." The title was published and also the first line, but the original title is not the same as was published, the title used read as follows, "A Night Before Christmas."

This great mistake spoils the ideas and renders the poem worthless because only one title has any bearing on the original title and by writing it was it would refer to any night before Christmas.

I try to hold such poems as this in high esteem and mistakes like this are needless. Longfellow's poem, "The Old Clock," was once published in a newspaper, the title read as follows, "The Old Clock On The Stairs." Such a title as that has no meaning. The clock referred to in the poem stood half-way up the stairs on what is known as a rest, it could not stand on the stairs. The right title reads "The Old Clock." If one single word or line in changed, then it is not his poem.

I have schoolmates living today who with a very little study could put their sketching although they don't seem to realize it themselves. But it requires work and ambition if you would excel in any work of art and reach the top round of the ladder of success. Must I call them daffy, so to speak? No, I must realize that they have been endowed with a God-given power that lies far from my reach, it is an inheritance. Any writer uses his head, his gift and his dictionary. The meaning of words must be correct, the spelling must be right and the writer is well schooled on these few facts. It is true that poets who do unusual things are old and different perhaps from the common individual. We are all different, we look different. People who do difficult things, looks queer to you, but it is as I said before, an inheritance and one that we have a right to claim.

Most schoolmates living today who the goblet of fame were men who believed in God, without this fact their life work would be shallow in the eyes of men. Never let it be said of you, "An Infidel Lies Here." I have tried to make it plain to you that to write a good poem it requires work, thought, sentiment and ambition.

FOREST PROTECTION WEEK AND ARBOR DAY—1924

By the President of the United States of America.

Whereas, it is essential to the continued comfort, welfare, and prosperity of the people of the United States that abundant forests, widely distributed and maintained in a condition of high productivity, be forever wisely conserved as one of our greatest natural resources; and whereas, because of our constantly increasing need for wood and other forest products, together with our past failure to provide for reforestation, we are drawing upon our supplies of timber four times as fast as they are renewed through growth; and

Whereas, the most formidable agency of forest destruction and prevention of reforestation is fire, and of the fires which, annually devastate vast areas, four-fifths are ascribed in origin to human agencies and virtually all may be controlled and made innocuous through prudence, care, and vigilance;

Therefore, I, Calvin Coolidge, President of the United States, do urge upon the Governors of the various States to designate and set apart the week of April 21-27, 1924, as Forest Protection Week, and, wherever practicable and not in conflict with State law or accepted customs, to celebrate Arbor Day within the week; and I also urge all citizens, either in association or as individuals, all schools, and the press of the land to give common thought to the protection of our forests from fire, to the end that in the future as in the past these forests may supply us with wood, protect the purity of our streams and otherwise serve the people of the United States.

In Witness Whereof, I have hereunto set my hand and caused the seal of the United States to be affixed.

Done at the City of Washington this 15th day of Feb., in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and twenty-four, and of the Independence of the United States of America the one hundred and forty-eighth.

Calvin Coolidge

Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State.

PRINCIPLES OF POULTRY HOUSE CONSTRUCTION

When one considers that hens living in a climate like we have in Maine, it must be remembered that they are living in a climate entirely unnatural to them. It should also be realized that when these hens produce eggs during the fall and winter months that they are producing these eggs out of season. To accomplish satisfactory results in egg production, therefore, the house in which these hens live must be comfortable.

A house to be comfortable must provide certain conditions. First of all, the most important condition to be provided is dryness. Dampness in poultry houses comes largely from the hens themselves. Hens having a high body temperature breathe more rapidly and more air per pound of body weight than do other animals and with a highly developed living system, they give off a great deal of moisture through their respiratory tracts. Unless sufficient ventilation is provided, this moisture coming in contact with the cold walls of the house in winter collects in the form of frost. Then during a warm period the frost will melt, making a damp condition in the house and will provide ideal conditions for cold and roup.

Damp floors and damp walls in a poultry house are often caused by the house setting close to the ground. Damp litter is very detrimental since hens will not scratch in it and will not get the exercise needed. This condition can usually be prevented by building the house at least one and one-half feet from the ground, leaving it open underneath.

Ventilation is essential in a poultry house not only to eliminate moisture but also to provide fresh air and to rid the house of foul gases and odors. Another important factor is sunshine. The house should face the south and the windows and opening in the south side should permit sunshine to strike all parts of the floor at some time during the day.

Besides being comfortable for the hens, the poultry house should be conveniently arranged so that it will require the least amount of time and care for the hens. It should be constructed as economically as possible.

The open front type of house, facing the south, built up from the ground and with the uneven pitch roof, provides all of these conditions.

An important point to consider in the open front type of house is the depth. Sixteen feet is considered a minimum depth for satisfactory houses of this type and one which is 18 by 24 feet deep is preferable, since they are warmer and the hens may be kept in larger flocks, thereby reducing the labor. In deep houses of this type it is advisable to put small windows in the north side of the house underneath the dropping boards. This tends to equalize the light on the floor and keeps the litter more evenly distributed.

When the principles necessary to provide comfort, convenience and a low cost in a poultry house are applied, the type of structure or kind of material is of less importance.

A FORERUNNER OF TROUBLE

Since Maine has entered the registration area of our country, there has been so great a diminution in the number of deaths from typhoid fever that, if calamitous times could carry us back to the original condition, there would be an increase in the death rate from typhoid fever of between 500 and 600 per cent. over what it is now. The lowering of this special death-rate has come from the bettering of public water supplies, the controlling and improving of milk supplies, the teaching of the owners of wells and springs of the great danger of contamination or pollution into them of polluting matter, and the educative work, which was begun in our State earlier than elsewhere, which emphasizes the danger of contact infection—the direct transmission of infection from the sick to those who associate with them.

As an additional means of reducing the sickness rate and the death-rate from typhoid fever, the State Department of Health wishes to appeal to local health officers and other persons to report promptly any unusual prevalence of intestinal disturbances so that an investigation may be made as to the cause of such gastro-intestinal troubles. It has happened frequently that outbreaks of typhoid fever, the infection of which has been water-borne, have been preceded by intestinal outbreaks. Winter outbreaks of typhoid fever have again and again followed in the wake of the so-called "winter cholera," and the appearance of typhoid fever at other seasons is sometimes preceded by these less serious ailments.

CARE IN AUTOBOMBING

The word automobile starts with "A." So does the word accident. There have been too many accidents during the past few years, due principally to carelessness. By exercising a little caution and mixing in a little common sense in the operation of a car, a great many accidents may be avoided. "Obey the motor vehicle laws and don't forget that you aren't on a race track," might serve as a slogan. Pedestrians should use the same care and parents should instruct their children in the dangers of the public highways. All this would help.

Perhaps just one more thing—the old saying that "alcohol and gasoline don't mix." The man who drives while under the influence of intoxicating liquors is a public menace. Last year the courts were particularly strict in this respect. This year will find them even more stern in dealing with this class of criminals. The man who is caught trying to mix the two may cool his heels in the county jail for a few months. That also is a good thing to remember.

HOUSECLEANING TIME

Housecleaning time has come, the busiest time of the year for the housewife and the most trying time for the rest of the family, but it's soon over; the house is so clean when everything is in order again. If the men would only have patience while the work is being done, it would make it much easier for the wives.

I am sorry to say that some of them are exceedingly cross and fault finding until the place has taken on its new dress. I wish the men were obliged to do some work and give the tired wife a rest; then they would realize what a woman has to do to set her house in order. They might in the future assist her with the work.
